

Summary of discipline Information Technologies in Measuring Instrument Testing
I. BACKGROUND

Discipline "Information technology in the testing of measuring instruments" includes knowledge about the testing of measuring instruments, methods of processing the test results of measuring instruments, application of information technology to analyze test results of measuring instruments.

The main purpose of laboratory work is to get acquainted with the practical challenges of measuring instruments, the order of their conduct, methods, tools and information technology processing test results.